FIFTEEN INJURED IN TROLLEY CRASH OUTSIDE PERKASIE

Car Hits Rear of First Which Halts As Overhead Wheel Leaves Line

NONE SERIOUSLY HURT

Momentary Panic Ensues As Individuals Are Pinned Between Seats

PERKASIE, July 27—Fifteen persons were injured Saturday night in a collision of two Lehigh Valley Transit Co. trolleys on the outskirts of Perkassie Park.

The crash occurred at 9:45 p. m. on the same Philadelphia-to-Allentown line on which a head-on collision of trolleys near Norristown 17 days earlier killed 12 persons and injured 20.

Saturday night's accident involved two trolleys traveling north toward Allentown, the second car striking the rear of the first when the overhead trolley wheel of the first car left the power line and the car came to a halt with its lights out.

Momentary panic resulted, and the screams of women pinned between seats and the shouts of men seeking to restore order in the rush for doors brought a crowd of 500 from the park, a summer cottage colony, about 100 yards south of the crash scene.

Smoke rolled up inside the trolleys, apparently as a result of short circuits, and firemen were summoned from nearby Perkassie borough, but no fire broke out.

The injured, none of whom were believed seriously hurt, were taken to Grandview Hospital at Sellersville.

Passengers said there were about 40 passengers on each car when the crash occurred a few moments after

IN NAVY SHORT TIME, NOW IS "DOWN UNDER"

Ensign William M. Power, of Doylestown, 10,000 Miles From Home in Record Time

MID-WINTER THERE

DOYLESTOWN, July 27—Ensign William M. Power, of the U. S. Navy, a Doylestown young man, is stationed in Auckland, North Island, New Zealand, 10,000 miles from his home.

Power, a former Doylestown high school athlete ace, attended Ursinus College, and graduated this year from the University of Pennsylvania law school, Philadelphia. He shortly thereafter was commissioned as an ensign.

He was in Norfolk, Va., less than a month before he was shipped to a Western Coast base, and then transferred to a Navy training center.

"The 10,000 mile water trip was quite exciting, but it makes you think twice when you are 10,000 miles from home," Ensign Power wrote his dad.

From "the land down under," the home of famous fighters, Ensign Power has cabled his father and one letter had been received from him. None of the letters written to Ensign Power, care of the Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif., has as yet reached him, however.

It is mid-winter in New Zealand now and the latest request from Ensign Power received by his father this week was for some heavy clothing. It is believed that Power is undergoing advanced training now at the New Zealand base, where he is living in a hotel.

Ensign Power, who was probably the outstanding athlete of recent years in this community, writes that he attended a motion picture in Auckland and while there talked to the manager who has been in charge of the place for 20 years. The manager told him that he was a former vaudeville actor and that he was one of the performers at the opening week's program of the Earle Theatre in Philadelphia some years ago, and that he knew of the former Strand Theatre, Doylestown, at one time managed by Ensign Power's father.

Since he arrived in New Zealand, Ensign Power has attended a few sessions of court, where he saw the judges wearing wigs and gowns so familiar in pictures and photographs from that country.

New Zealand has a population of

RATION BOARD NOW BUSY CONSIDERING THE SUPPLEMENTALS

Corps of Volunteer Women Are Greatly Aiding In the Work

FIND MANY ERRORS

Numerous Applicants Make Errors in Giving Data On Applications

The Rationing Board with its group of women volunteer helpers is accomplishing surprising results in the task of issuing supplemental gasoline rations. Every day for the past two weeks they have been at the office in the Bath Street School Building, some acting as hosts or hostesses and helping the public to fill out the complicated forms, while others have been kept busy issuing ration books to owners of trucks and for non-highway uses.

Last week the Board started the work of sorting the supplemental applications and placing them on file in alphabetical order. For several days the Board has been examining the applications and passing them on to the efficient women helpers to issue the books. When it is known that every application must be examined by the Board and receive its O. K. before the rations can be issued, some idea of the task can be realized. Wonderful results are being achieved but it will require several days yet before the books can be issued to the public.

When the work is completed and the books issued the "public should try to appreciate the tremendous duty which these women and men have taken upon themselves without hope of profit or reward." Undoubtedly there will be some objection and criticism but the Government has made provision for appeal if anyone is dissatisfied," said a spokesman.

"The severity of the O. P. A. laws will surely make some people angry. The granting of 'B' books only to traveling salesmen, the curtailment of gasoline rationing when the applicant owns two cars, the misunderstanding of the questions on the supplemental application and the necessity for filling out a separate application for sickness, hospitalization, etc., is bound to create dissatisfaction," he said.

"The mileage asked for in very many instances has been excessive and the

3 HOBBIES FOLLOWED BY MORRISVILLE WOMAN

Mrs. LeRoy B. Stackhouse Collects Miniature Horses and Old Coins

AND BOOKS OF MATCHES

MORRISVILLE, July 27—Mrs. LeRoy B. Stackhouse, of West Maple avenue, goes in for hobbies—plural of the word "hobby" which it is a well-known fact everyone should have.

At present she is interested in three—collection of miniature horses from various cities of the nation; collection of books of matches from all parts of the world; and collecting of old coins.

No. 1 in her collections are the horses. She has nearly 50 of the miniature animals, and each is from a different city. Mrs. Stackhouse first began collecting horses 14 years ago, on her honeymoon in the West.

She began this interesting hobby because of her love for horses. As a small girl she rode considerably in the Pocono Mountains. This eventually led her to have her own riding academy before her marriage. She still rides each Sunday with her husband. Her riding ability helped her greatly when she was 14 years of age. Living at South Sterling, she was shot accidentally by a youth near her home, the 22 calibre bullet piercing her just below the neck. After first aid treatment she rode a horse five miles to the nearest doctor, and had to ride to see him 25 more times before she recovered. The bullet is still lodged in her back.

Hobby No. 2 is collecting full books of matches, and she has over 500 different ones. They come from all over the world.

No. 3 hobby is the coin collection, and it is the baby of the three. It includes a penny each year for the past several decades.

Mrs. Stackhouse, a resident of Morrisville for the past 14 years, is Democratic vice-chairman of Bucks County and regional director for Montgomery, Northampton and Bucks Counties.

JOS. ZALOT TO ASSUME POSTMASTERSHIP FRIDAY

Appointment To Langhorne Post Confirmed From Washington, D. C.

WAS RURAL CARRIER

LANGHORNE, July 27—Recently named to the postmastership at Langhorne office, Joseph Zalot will assume his new duties on Friday. Confirmation of his appointment has been received from Washington. Mr. Zalot succeeds Miss Marjorie D. Candy, who was serving as acting postmistress since November 1, 1940, when she was appointed following retirement of her father in September of that year.

Mr. Zalot has been in the postal service in Langhorne since October, 1927. He served as substitute clerk and carrier for 11 years and was appointed rural letter carrier on June 1, 1938. He held that position until his recent appointment as postmaster.

Zalot's position as rural carrier will be taken temporarily by John Mortimer.

Langhorne's incoming postmaster was born in Barnesboro, Cambria county. He received his primary education at the St. Adalbert's Parochial School, Philadelphia. He attended the Central High School in Philadelphia for two years, giving up his studies to enlist in the Polish Army in France. A previous attempt to enlist in the U. S. Army met with refusal because of his age.

Zalot served with the Polish Army for 2½ years. He attended the officers' training school at Western Hall, Niagara, on Lake Canada, where he graduated with honors and was commissioned a second lieutenant at the age of 17. Later he left for France in command of 250 officers and men. In

We Americans are a people unto whom much has been given; one can readily understand that even today, when because of the war, we are called upon to sacrifice some of the luxuries to which we have become so snugly accustomed. When we honestly compare our present condition with the condition of any other nation, or even with the conditions under which our forefathers, who came here more than 166 years ago, lived, then we realize how wonderfully we have been, and still are provided for by Almighty God. Surely our national development confirms the eternal truth of Christ's words, which I would have you think seriously about this morning, namely "Unto whom much is given; of him also much is required." Most people tend to forget the latter part of that truth; the return required for what has been given, either individually or nationally.

Let us think back for a few moments. What was given our founders; those brave pioneers, who gave up their comfortable homes, and came here and experienced great hardships and grave perils in order to establish a nation where religious liberty would be guaranteed to all? They were given a vast and a rich land; a land of almost unbelievable natural resources, a land that was so spacious that it could accommodate without overcrowding many millions of people, a land that was so ideally situated geographically that it would always be comparatively safe from outside interference. All this and much more was given to those who ventured forth from the old country in to this new land, that was so full of promise. They came facing the task of establishing a nation where liberty and justice would be the heritage of all future generations.

Now look for a moment at the other part of the truth. What was required in return for that which was given? It seems to me God's requirements for Americans for all generations in return for what he so lavishly gave them, were that America be made into a great nation; a nation that would be the spiritual leader of the world; a nation that would be foremost in carrying out God's eternal purpose for the world. This challenge to be the spiritual leader of the world is vividly symbolized for us by the stars in our national emblem. The heritage of Americans is we are to guide others to Christ; and our forefathers gladly accepted that part of the covenant. In return for the good land given them,

CHANGE LOCATION, DECONTAMINATION BLDG. FOR BRISTOL

Site Selected is At The Sewage Pumping Station

WILL LESSEN THE UPKEEP

Heat and Water As Well As Caretaker Are Available

Plans are being drawn and specifications are being prepared for a decontamination center for Bristol Borough. The location of the decontamination center has been changed from Penn street to a plot of ground owned by the Borough and on which is now located the sewage pumping station, south of Mill street.

The building will be of brick and adjoin the sewage pumping station.

The plans are being prepared by John S. Roberts, Jr., Borough Engineer with Dr. H. Doyle Webb cooperating.

It was originally planned to build the decontamination center on a piece of land under lease by St. Ann's A. C. Club, on Penn street near Wood street. This land had been offered free for the purpose by St. Ann's Club.

Upon looking into the matter of maintaining the building, so that it might always be prepared for the service for which it is intended, it was found that heat would have to be supplied, water furnished and a man kept in charge.

It was found that the cost of maintenance would amount to considerable and consequently a search was made for some place which would make this maintenance expense unnecessary.

The location at the sewage pumping station was suggested by Mr. Roberts and it was found that only two sides of a building would have to be built at this site. A man is on duty 24 hours a day and water and heat are always available.

The new location was brought to the attention of Bristol Defense Council and at once approved.

It is believed that the building will be erected by volunteer labor. Borough Council appropriated $1,000 for the project.

IMPORTANCE OR RESERVES

Observers in the Caucasus indicate that Marshal Timoshenko has been defending that rich region with approximately the men and weapons with which he started in mid-June. Only now is he calling upon his reserve strength, while von Bock of the Nazis has been constantly bringing up new divisions to bolster his offensive.

The Russian command has been playing a waiting game. The strategy of that game has been to defer major counter-attacks until the invaders had reached certain extended positions and then disrupt them with a smashing offensive bolstered by fresh men and weapons.

This could be accomplished in two ways:

By direct attack upon the spearhead lunging southeast toward the Caspian Sea to sever north and south Russia.

By driving deeply into Nazi defenses somewhere in the Moscow area so as to threaten Hitler's entire line of supply into Russia and force the withdrawal of his Caucasian armies.

Russian prospects of stopping Hitler hinge entirely upon the existence of large reserves of Russian men and weapons. Reports indicate that there are great reserves of planes, tanks, guns and men far back of the present battle lines waiting to be hurled into the fray.

Both America and Britain have been sending large convoys to Russia for months and unless these deliveries have all been used in the current battles—which is unlikely—the Russians should have some powerful punches to throw at the aggressor.

The full story of Russia will be unfolded in the next few weeks. Russia's waiting game has worked before. The Soviet may be on the verge of one of the greatest triumphs in history.

JAPAN'S NEXT MOVE

Report by the Navy Department at Washington that the Japanese have set up facilities on three islands at the tip of the Aleutian chain for more than two weeks have made no important or successful effort to enlarge their holdings seems to identify the Jap aggression in the North Pacific as a screening operation covering a major campaign elsewhere, probably in Siberia.

Military observers believe Japan is planning to strike in the Vladivostok area early in August. Such a thrust would be synchronized with Hitler's attainment of some objective in European Russia, perhaps Rostov or Stalingrad. By Chinese accounts the Japs continue to move divisions up along the Amur river. Tokyo's periodical announcements that the non-aggression pact with Russia is still in effect fool nobody.

Should Siberia be the next Japanese goal, the Jap navy will be concentrated in home waters, along the Kurile Islands and in the vicinity of the three occupied Aleutian Islands. That means America's naval and air strength will be focused in the area from Midway and Hawaii up to Alaska and Dutch Harbor.

A tremendous naval air engagement may be slated in the cold, windy waters of the North Pacific. America undoubtedly is preparing for such an eventuality and will be ready. Buoyed by decisive Coral Sea and Midway victories, America should go into the next Pacific test with an edge in ship and plane strength and with complete confidence that it will emerge triumphant.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette Issue dated at Bristol Sept. 16, 1889. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

We are informed that Rev. L. G. Beck, of Philadelphia, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Baptist Church, and will shortly move to Bristol.

There are said to be no houses vacant in the second ward. Mr. Edmund Lawrence, who has erected a large number of comfortable buildings in that ward, is now engaged in putting up four more on Penn street. The indications are that they will not long remain vacant.

Bristol monopolized much of the time of court at Doylestown this week. The cases in most instances were of a trivial character. If justices of the peace had jurisdiction over these petty suits it would be a great deal less expense to the county, and justice would be meted out as impartially as at present, and oftentimes more rigorously.

Rev. Dr. James Cunningham, of the Methodist Church, has been designated by Bishop Harris to fill the place of the late Dr. Chapman, as presiding elder of the Lehigh District of the Philadelphia Conference. This will, of course, necessitate the absence of Dr. Cunningham.

At Newportville a large Garfield and Arthur Club was organized on Saturday evening last. The following officers were chosen: President, W. R. Vandegrift; vice-president, Dr. James Patterson; secretary, Harry T. Sticke; treasurer, David Harrison. A marching club was also organized on the same evening, and is officered by the following persons: Captain, Charles H. McConkie; 1st Lt., James Patterson; 2nd Lt., Harry Rue; 3rd Lt., Harry McCoy.

The Junior Archers, the "Makerskittens," shot their first prize match on Saturday, the 11th. The prizes were two arrows, given by the club for the best shots among the boys and girls, respectively. That for the boys was won by Master Chester Hyde, with a score of 89; hits 15; distance 29 yards. While Miss Carrie Packer carried off the arrow offered to the girls with a score of 71; hits 13.

Prof. Woodruff having persevered year after year, in making application for the use of the court house in which to hold the Teachers' Institute has at last been successful. The commission, ever have, without argument, granted the use of the court house for the next institute.

The friends and patrons of Miss Merriam's school will be pleased to learn that she has secured the services of an able teacher in the French and German languages, Mlle. Parizot, who is a native of Germany and of French descent, is by birth and education fully competent to impart instruction to her pupils in these languages. . . .

At Newportville a large Garfield and Arthur Club was organized on Saturday evening last. The following officers were chosen: President, W. R. Vandegrift; vice-president, Dr. James Patterson; secretary, Harry T. Sticke; treasurer, David Harrison. A marching club was also organized on the same evening, and is officered by the following persons: Captain, Charles H. McConkie; 1st Lt., James Patterson; 2nd Lt., Harry Rue; 3rd Lt., Harry McCoy.

The regular meeting of the council was held on Monday evening. All the members were present except Henry Stuch. The street committee reported that the trunk under the railroad at Pond street had been lowered. . . . Mr. Scheide alluded to the absurd practice of having the street lamps lighted only on nights when the moon does not shine, the effect of which was very frequently to leave the streets in utter darkness when the lights were most needed, and moved that the street committee be instructed to direct the lighters to have the lamps lighted every dark night whether the moon shone or not. . . . Mr. Scheide's resolution was adopted.

Mr. Scheide then referred to the variety of prices charged for coffins for paupers and moved that the poor committee be instructed to ascertain a regular schedule of prices and the lowest rates for which such coffins could be furnished. . . . On motion of Dr. Potts, the street committee was instructed to have the public pump and watering trough on Bath street put in proper condition. The treasurer reported the amount of unpaid taxes to be $1097.34, and unpaid dog tax at $134.

On motion of Mr. Hognet the street committee was instructed to have the grade fixed on Bath street, from Mifflin to the borough limits. . . .

well dinner by his grandparents in Pineville this week.

The service of Michael Andrew Lord, 23, in the U. S. armed forces has taken him to the heights of the stratosphere and to the depths of the sea.

Lord, a veteran of a four-year Navy term, in which period he was a deep-sea diver, is now an aviation cadet at the advanced twin-engine Columbus Army Flying School, at Columbus, Miss. The young man is to receive the silver wings of a flying officer and a commission as a second lieutenant in the Army Air Forces at the exercises marking the graduation of the fifth class of cadets from the Columbus Air Base, August 5.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Lord, Jr., Morrisville, he enlisted in the Navy November 11, 1936, applying for aviation training. His application apparently took effect in reverse, for he was sent to the diving school at San Diego, Cal., from which he was graduated as a diver, second class. Assigned to the U. S. S. Vincennes, a heavy cruiser, as a coxswain, he made dives off the coasts of California, Cuba and the Azores. That "Join the Navy and See the World" slogan was no idle boast in his case, for he left the service as a widely traveled man.

He was employed as a rigger by the DeLaval Steam Turbine Company, Trenton, N. J., when he was accepted for aviation cadet training by the Army Air Forces, December 19, 1941. He received his primary training at Decatur, Ala., and his basic training at Greenville, Miss., prior to his assignment to the Columbus Air Base on June 2.

The Great Game of Politics

has no sincere defenders. It is not satisfactory to anyone.

THE REAL HOPE for a better bill is based on the fact that, while the whole membership of the House must be elected in November, only one third of the ninety-six Senators are concerned with this election. The other two thirds come up either in 1944 or 1946. This should mean that politics, as applied to taxes, will weigh less heavily in the Senate than in the House. However, the Senators who are in position to—and who want to—vote their convictions and act on this bill without regard to political considerations will have no greater support from the Administration than it gave the House, which is practically none. And without genuine and resolute administration support it is exceedingly difficult for either Senate or House to rise above politics.

tics and resist pressure on anything. It is possible, of course, but there are not many instances where it has been done.

UNDER OUR SYSTEM, the only way in which matters such as this can be dealt with as they should be is for the Administration, first, to cast aside its political fears and then exert its influence upon Congress to do the same. It is regrettable that we have not got an Administration capable of that sort of thing. It is, perhaps, our greatest need in this critical period. What we have is an Administration which is setting a very bad example not only by engaging actively in the present political campaign but in planning actively for future campaigns. The President's personal direction of the fight for the New York gubernatorial nomination is certainly no inspiration to members of Congress to forget politics while the war lasts—quite the contrary.

NOR CAN IT be said that the tax suggestions that have come from the President recently have been helpful. The one concrete proposal which he has made and to which he still clings is that a ceiling of $25,000 over individual incomes should be adopted, although the Treasury, itself, estimates that this would affect only 11,000 persons and bring in less than $185,000,000 additional revenue. Even if that were done the gap of $30,000,000,000 between spendable incomes and the things for which those incomes can be spent would still exist. Individual income and corporation income rates in the medium and higher brackets have now been raised to the extreme limit of safety—some think beyond. Certainly, any further increases would bring the law of diminishing returns into operation and all present calculations would be knocked out.

YET, BOTH THE Administration and the House preferred to take this risk and accept a grotesquely inadequate bill rather than accept the sales tax, which is the one logical alternative. The White House, the Treasury and the House of Representatives all recognize the inevitability of the sales tax. Yet in none of these is there the courage to take a stand for it before the election, although no one denies that the cost to the country of a year's delay will be very great. It remains to be seen whether the Senate will join this craven aggregation or will act in an enlightened and creditable way to buttress our financial foundations against the terrific strain of an unprecedented war.

SYNOPSIS

As the prosecutor sums up the case against Elinor Carlisle for the murder of lovely, young Mary Gerrard, the accused's thoughts go back to events leading up to the fatal day. She had received an anonymous letter that someone was trying to do her and her fiancé, Roddy Welman, out of their Aunt Laura Welman's money. Elinor believed that "someone" was Mary Gerrard, Mrs. Welman's protegee and the daughter of the old lady's oedokeeper. Regardless of the money involved, the young couple were fond of their invalid aunt and decided to visit her and also investigate the mysterious letter. In the meantime, Mrs. Welman's Nurse O'Brien related a strange incident to District Nurse Hopkins. The night before, her patient had asked for the old-fashioned picture of a handsome young man she kept in her dresser drawer. Gazing at it, the old lady murmured, "Lewis-Lewis!" Her late husband's name was Henry. Roddy and Elinor arrived at Hunterbury, the Welman estate, and were welcomed by their aunt. Pleased to learn of their engagement, Mrs. Welman asked Elinor if she really loved Roddy. "I care for Roddy enough but not too much," the girl answered, afraid to reveal she was madly in love with him because her main attraction for Roddy was her aloofness. At the moment, the young man in question strolled in the garden, thinking of Elinor and apparently satisfied with his lot. Suddenly an odd restlessness gripped him. Just then a beautiful, golden-haired girl came towards him.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Something gripped him; he stood quite still, as though frozen into immobility. The world, he felt was spinning, was topsy-turvy, was suddenly and impossibly and gloriously crazy!

The girl stopped suddenly, then she came on. She came up to him where he stood, dumb and absurdly fish-like, his mouth open. She said, with a little hesitation: "Don't you remember me, Mr. Roderick? It's a long time, of course, I'm Mary Gerrard, from the lodge."

Roddy said: "Oh—oh—you're Mary Gerrard?"

She said: "Yes." Then she went on, rather shyly: "I've changed, of course, since you saw me."

He said: "Yes, you've changed. I—I wouldn't have recognized you."

He stood staring at her. He did not hear footsteps behind him. Mary did not turn.

Elinor stood motionless a minute. Then she said: "Hello, Mary."

Mary said: "How do you do, Miss Elinor? It's nice to see you. Mrs. Welman has been looking forward to your coming down."

Elinor said: "Yes—it's a long time, I—Nurse O'Brien sent me to look for you. She wants to lift Mrs. Welman up, and she says you usually do it with her."

Mary said: "I'll go at once."

She moved off, breaking into a run. Elinor stood looking after her. Mary ran well, grace in every movement.

Roddy said softly: "Atalanta."

Elinor did not answer. She stood quite still for a minute or two. Then she said: "It's nearly lunch-time. We'd better go back." They walked side by side towards the house.

"Oh! Come on, Mary. It's Garbo, and a grand film—all about Paris. And a story by a tiptop author. There was an opera of it once."

"It's frightfully nice of you, Ted, but I really don't care to go."

Ted Bigland said angrily: "I can't make you out nowadays, Mary. You're different—altogether different."

"No, I'm not, Ted."

"You are! I suppose because you've been away to that grand school and to Germany. You're too good for us now."

"It's not true, Ted. I'm not like that." She spoke vehemently.

The young man, a fine sturdy specimen, looked at her appraisingly in spite of his anger. "Yes, you are. You're almost a lady, Mary."

Mary said with sudden bitterness: "Almost isn't much good, is it?"

He said with sudden understanding: "No, I reckon it isn't."

Mary said quickly: "Anyway, who cares about that sort of thing nowadays? Ladies and gentlemen, and all that?"

"It doesn't matter like it did—no," Ted assented, but thoughtfully. "All the same, there's a feeling, Lord, Mary, you look like a duchess or a countess or something."

Mary said: "That's not saying much. I've seen countesses looking like old-clothes women!"

"Well, you know what I mean."

A stately figure of ample proportions, handsomely dressed in black, bore down upon them. Her eyes gave them a sharp glance. Ted moved aside a step or two. He said: "Afternoon, Mrs. Bishop."

Mary said rather dispiritedly: "Yes . . ."

Nurse Hopkins looked up alertly from where she was stooping to light the gas-ring under the kettle. Her long nose twitched. "Was he the village! Pokes that long nose of hers

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O God, whom no eye hath seen nor can see, but who dost reveal thyself to the pure in heart, make us pure that we might more clearly see thee. Reveal unto us the significance of thy love; the meaning of the cross; the need of salvation; the hope of the resurrection. Our faith in thee is not dependent upon beholding thy face, nor is it dependent upon thy bestowal of physical blessing and comfort. So fortify us, O God, that in the midst of the darkness of the present day we might see the glorious light of Christ thy Son. In His Name we pray. Amen.

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly

(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)

stars have turned to exercise and more of it, to give them the added vigor and energy they need to carry on not only their acting jobs but their patriotic and defense duties.

No longer are the night spots jammed with crowded tables of film notables. War is a serious business. Hollywood is exerting every effort to be trim and fit so it can cope with any emergency situation. Thus, the turn to wholesome, health-building exercise in place of dim lights and crowded dance-floors.

Bette Davis, who is currently working at Warner Bros. in "Now, Voyager," plays badminton as one of her favorite means of building up resistance. Bette chooses a plain white sharkskin dress that hits just above the knee to give plenty of freedom for action. It is styled with a shirtwaist top and flared skirt and fastens from the top to the bottom with pearl buttons. A gay touch is added with a red, white and blue cord belt. White socks and regulation tennis shoes complete the ensemble.

Joan Leslie, youthful Warner Bros. star to be seen in "Yankee Doodle Dandy," is enthusiastic over horseback riding. Joan's smart equestrienne outfit consists of black and white tunic-jodphurs, a long-sleeved white shirt, black leather belt and black jodphur boots.

Barbara Stanwyck, whose latest Warner Bros. release is "The Gay Sisters," plays a good deal of tennis. White is the only thing to wear on the court, says Miss Stanwyck, so she wears a simple one-piece tennis dress with a short-pleated skirt and loosely fitted blouse. She has a very colorful carry-all bag, however, which has a drawstring top of blue and white polka-dotted cotton and deep, round base of blue leather.

Bicycling is Brenda Marshall's favorite form of exercise. Even a couple of hours' respite from her work in the current filming of "You Can't Escape Forever," finds Brenda peddling away. Brenda's favored costume is a pair of sawed-off slacks with a gay-colored blouse. She particularly likes the crisscross ghillie to wear on her feet, as it ties around the ankle to give an added sense of security.

they had left the park and had reached a point at which the tracks run through an open field.

Ambulances sped two miles from Sellersville to the scene of the crash, and had difficulty in reaching the injured because of the rough terrain.

Perkaskie Park is a group of several scores of summer cottages in which about 400 persons, most of them Philadelphians, are now vacationing. For many years, summer camp meetings were conducted in the large auditorium there.

Ration Board Now Busy Considering Supplementals

Board has been compelled to greatly reduce it. In other instances the request for mileage has been so extravagant and the mileage stipulated so unnecessary that the Board was compelled to reject the applications," continued the member of the Board.

"Although the method of calculating mileage on the basis of that requested in the supplemental applications has been explained in the Courier yet it is feared that the applicants will not understand the situation when they figure the mileage allotted to them in the 'B' and 'C' books. Once more the public is asked to remember that 150 miles per month is taken from the 'A' book in computing the total mileage. In consequence the coupons in the 'B' and 'C' books which are issued for a three months period will total 450 miles less than the total mileage allotted.

"Many applications are unsigned, others do not contain any stipulated mileage, in still others the purpose or intent of the applicant cannot be understood. Cards are being sent to all these applicants to appear before the Board. The whole proceeding is a tremendous task."

The area of New Zealand is about the size of New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey combined. The Maoris (the native race) are Polynesians of high intelligence. Auckland, where Ensign Power is stationed, has a population of 221,500.

New Zealand has the second lowest death rate in the world, and the lowest infant mortality rate in the world, it is said.

Rostov Defenders Maintain Positions

Moscow—9:10 A. M. EWT—The embattled Soviet defenders of Rostov today maintained their positions against smoking debris on the outskirts of the battered and burning city.

German troops made progress in the center of the bloody battlefield at only one point.

Elsewhere along the winding Don River front, from Rostov to Tsimliansk, tremendous Nazi forces, spearheaded by tank herds and thousands of planes, moved south to force new bridgeheads and widen those already held.

It may be presumed that the zone of attack along the Don already is widening.

German and Slovak soldiers at Rostov, stumbling over the bodies of their own dead, were piled with intoxicants before being sent into battle.

Bomb Axis-Held Port of Tobruk

Cairo—Army airmen participated in a devastating attack on the Axis held port of Tobruk in Libya over the week-end. It was announced today.

Countless heavy bombs were dropped and a large portion of the town was lit up by raging fires, started when the bombs ignited gasoline dumps.

The attack was the most successful to date, despite the fact that low-hanging clouds often prevented bombardiers from seeing their targets.

Appeal Board Upholds Classifications

Harrisburg—Appeal boards have upheld the following I-A classifications by local boards: Col. Benjamin F. Evans, acting state draft head, announced today. Earl Dize, Quakertown, LB 4, Bucks Co.; Robert Grundstaf, Morrisville, LB 2, Bucks, and Russell Glidin, Morrisville, LB 2, Bucks.

Perkaskie—Train and trolley service in the Sellersville-Perkaskie area of Bucks County was delayed today by a cloudburst which flooded the banks of Lenape Creek.

During the hour long torrent, portions of walls of the Reading Railroad's tunnel on the Bethlehem Division caved in, delaying trains from 11 minutes to more than an hour.

The Lehigh Valley Transit Company's tracks were also inundated.

Two Dead in Flash Flood

Lancaster, Pa.—Two persons were dead today as the result of a flash flood which suddenly covered highways with raging torrents and marooned hundreds of motorists for hours.

John Serek, 71, of Reamstown, was drowned by the overflow from the Cocalico Creek near his home while attempting to swim from a bungalow, while Dorothy Long, 13, of Terre Hill, perished in the high waters when an automobile in which she was riding overturned near Martindale. Her father and two brothers were rescued.

Lightning fired a large barn near Weidmanville, causing damage estimated at $20,000. Several bridges were also swept away by the cloudburst.

ally qualified. It would be a paradox for me to attempt to point out how abundantly God has blessed our nation with material resources, which are not yet even fully developed. Each year new natural sources of wealth are being discovered, and America is indeed the veritable promised land of Canaan; a land of milk and honey as the scripture says, a land of Gold, a land of everything the human heart can desire. God also has given us great spiritual riches; the Church has been here ever since the nation, and we ourselves here in St. James' Parish are the inheritors of a priceless spiritual heritage.

The chief difficulty of the past generation is we have allowed other things to crowd the Church out of our lives; a great many have not availed themselves of the privileges of the Church, and we are slowly beginning to discover a great lack in life. Surely we cannot be morally qualified to lead others spiritually as long as we ourselves are indifferent to God; we cannot prevent freedom from perishing from the earth as long as we ourselves are slaves to sin.

Human freedom has been attacked many times in the past; always ambitious men have sought to take away the freedom of their fellow men, in order to gain power for themselves, and in most instances people have become enslaved by Dictators, because they have let go all their moral moorings. Today the chaos of the world is due in no small measure to the moral laxity of men and nations. Ours is a grave responsibility both individually and nationally.

We are now in a struggle to overcome the enemies that have attacked us from without. There is no doubt but that we shall conquer for our cause is just. We have had many glorious victories in the past, but in the present struggle, we shall have to seek more than victory over the enemies that attack us from without, we must also seek victory over the enemies that attack us from within; those inner foes of selfishness, and greed and conceit and the temptation to do as we please, when we please. In short we need new moral equipment; for it is only as we morally equip ourselves, that we can do what our forefathers set out to do, make this nation a Christian nation; a nation that truly serves God and points the way to God for all others. The world looks to America and America must be morally equipped to lead the world.

It seems to me that as members of a Parish which has stood here amid the strain and stress of more than two and a quarter centuries, a parish which has gone through five major wars and now is facing another war, we are individually challenged to choose for ourselves the best spiritual help possible and we must set out to accomplish the highest in service to our country. War always demands that we support our government enthusiastically and sacrificially in opposing those who would destroy the American ideals of living, and certainly we should have equal enthusiasm and be willing to make equal sacrifices in order to establish within ourselves such self control, and such moral qualifications as will make us real Americans and real Christians.

In any history, be it national or of the Church, certain names stand out like stars in the sky. We Americans take great pride that we have been blessed with such men as Washington and Lincoln and Grant and Jefferson and Lee and hosts of others. There are many names in American history which are a sacred and cherished memory. So also are there great names in American Church history, names such as Bishop White and many others that stand out as great leaders and great Saints. In our own parish, we too have had great leaders. No one could ever estimate the output of a parish that is 230 years old, for the output could never be fully known, but certainly we have had great leaders go forth from this Parish.

The Church's business is not war but certainly the Church can be, and ever should be the arsenal of decency and truth and justice and Godliness. Certainly if civilization is ever to bring order again to this upset and badly confused world, we must give serious thought to our moral life, for morals are the roots of a nation and of life itself.

Our history as a parish is ever challenging and inspiring, for it towers behind us like great mountain peaks and it points out with clear visibility our sacred responsibility, for unto us truly much has been given, and from us much also will be required. The whole history of St. James' Parish has been filled with sacrifice and hard struggle. We have survived five wars; indeed our Church was scarcely past its infancy when the Revolutionary war came and the Church was desecrated as a stable. St. James has always emerged from the other dark periods of our national history stronger and better than ever. Yes, we are possessors of a great spiritual history.

Ever since I became Rector here, I have always felt the truth of the old story of Moses and the burning bush as being especially significant for us. You will recall Moses was tending the flocks of his father-in-law Jethro across the western fork of the Red Sea where we are told he saw a burning bush which was not consumed.

When Moses went to investigate it, an angel of the Lord appeared and bid him put off his shoes from his feet, for the place whereon he stood was Holy Ground. This truly is holy ground; ground whereon men in the past have found divine strength to enable them to manfully face life. And today you and I can make St. James' Parish a burning pillar for God's righteousness, a never ceasing flame for decency and purity and Godliness, a perpetual light of Christian citizenship. Most of us lightly accept our past, but our past has much in it to make us want to glorify God. It is the ordinary things that shape history, simple things that do not look at all as if they could ever be a match for the gigantic complex forces of evil which are now trying to destroy the world. Yet simple devotion to God, and faithful attendance to his Church, and the practise of Christ-likeness in our every day lives can change the whole course of the world. The place where on thou standest is Holy Ground, holy because of its rich past; holy because of the future it holds to each of us. A time will come when others will look back to us, the part we have played in helping make the world safe for decency, to make our Nation the spiritual leader of the world, to make our Parish the very arsenal of Christian living in this community. And the answer rests with you.

OTHER VITAL MATERIALS NEEDED AND HOW TO DISPOSE OF THEM

Waste Fats To help relieve shortage of fats and oils. Needed for glycerine to make explosives. Save pan and broiler drippings and deep fats after you've got all the cooking good from them. Strain into wide-mouthed tin can, that is spotlessly clean. Keep in refrigerator or cool, dark place until you have collected a pound or more. Then sell to your meat dealer.

TIN TUBES Tooth paste, cosmetic and shaving cream tubes. Turn in at drug store when you purchase new supply.

WASTE PAPER Needed only when announced by Local Salvage Committee.

NOT NEEDED (at this time)—Razor blades and glass.

Tin Cans

1. After emptying contents, wash the can thoroughly.

2. Cut off top and bottom completely, or cut open as illustrated.

3. Step heavily on can to flatten. But do not flatten by hammering. Tear off paper label.

4. Prepared can looks like this. Thoroughly clean. Paper label removed. Ends saved.

Tin cans are made of steel with a coating of tin. The tin is used to make bearings in war engines, and for new cans to ship food to our fighters. Steel is used for all machines of war. Save all food and coffee cans, except those with cone-shaped tops or with special rims (such as evaporated milk cans) which cannot be opened easily.

Do not save any cans that have not been washed, opened at both ends, flattened, and stripped of paper label!
